Christel House Academy South Middle School again designated as an Indiana
'School to Watch' by Indiana Middle Level Education Association

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indiana Middle Level Education Association (IMLEA) and the National Forum to Accelerate Middle Grades Reform, have announced that Christel House Academy (CHA) South Middle School has once again been designated as an Indiana “School to Watch.” To achieve this level of recognition, high-performing schools establish norms, structures, and organizational arrangements to support and sustain their trajectory toward excellence. They have a strong sense of purpose that drives every facet of educational practice and decision-making.

CHA South Middle School is one of 10 Indiana “Schools to Watch,” to receive this recognition. CHA South Middle School also received this recognition in 2012.

“We are very pleased to be named a 2015 School to Watch,” said Carey Dahncke, Director and Chief Academic Officer of Christel House Academy’s network of charter school. “Our teachers are committed to ensuring we meet the unique needs of middle school students, while challenging them to excel academically. The excellent work our staff shows when you meet our students.”

Established as a public charter school in 2002, CHA currently transforms the lives of more than 600 low income students in grades K-12. The school has a 93 percent economically disadvantaged population. Students receive textbooks, transportation, school supplies, uniforms, nutritious meals and medical services free or at reduced rates. CHA has been recognized both for its efforts to close the achievement gap among traditionally underserved and at-risk students in Indianapolis.
